As the journey heads further south, it reaches the lowland of Terai at Chitwan, passing the large cities of Narayanghat and Bharatpur.

From the town of Tadi, we leave the main highway and follow south through farm areas to reach Sauraha. A small town situated near the entrance of Chitwan National Park, where all the good hotels, lodges, and resorts are situated.

On arrival, you will be transferred to respective hotels for three overnights, received by the hotel manager and naturalist. After having a refreshing rest, the manager or naturalist provides brief information about jungle activities and safari as well as with do's and don'ts, then check into a nice room and enjoy a good lunch.

In the afternoon, the guide or naturalist will take you for a short nature walk or visit of the native Tharu village, to observe the cultures of the Tharu people, the main Indigenous tribe of Terai and Chitwan.
